

POETRY.

Who don't remember?

Most of us, (in breeches,) have been boys—we have been children, and we well remember, the boyhood haunts of 13—how we used to snag, and how our tutor used to snag us for the delinquency. But, somebody, seems to have had an earlier recollection of infancy, than our Joones,—though, he used to creep, and drag his now tight and elastic form slowly across the parlor floor, leaving in his track, unmistakable signs of an infants whereabouts. But, then, we can't say:

I remember, I remember,
When I first began to creep,
How I crawl'd straight into mischief—
How I wouldn't go to sleep—
How I pull'd the table linen,
With its contents on the floor;
How my mother spanked me for it,
'Till my tender flesh was sore.

But after that, we have some impressions, which time itself can never efface. Truly can we say:

I remember, I remember,
When I first began to talk;
And also well remember
Well the day I tried to walk;
First I grasped old Jowler's collar,
But he gave a sudden hop,
So into a pan of water,
Jowler spilt this child's sleep.

I remember, I remember,
When I used to go to school,
How I kept a watchful eye on
The schoolmaster's rod and rule;
How I hung on to the bushes—
How the dog hung fast to me,
Till my cryings brought a man who
Flogg'd me most awful.

I remember, I remember,
When I went a hooking peaches,
How a dog came out and caught me
By the surplus of my breeches;
How I hung on to the bushes—
How the dog hung fast to me,
Till my cryings brought a man who
Flogg'd me most awful.

I remember, I remember,
When the girls I used to kiss,
How I thought it rather funny,
But it gave no extra bliss;
Now it seizes me with rapture,
Now it fills my soul with joy;
Yet, with manhood's blissful pleasure,
Would that I still were a boy.

GLEANINGS.

Salt and Monticello.

Minnesota is said to have the richest salt region on the face of the earth. Federal, alias whig journals, have minute descriptions of the appearance of salt hills, looking like—“some banks.” Jefferson's belief in the existence of this region once caused the feds to be merry in prose and doggerel about “salt-mountain” credulity. Who does not know the J. Q. Adams effort “On the discoveries of Capt. Lewis?” This was first printed in 1807. The poet denied that he ever,

“To season his adventures, met
A mountain, soured in pickle.”

Nevertheless, by getting Lewis to a dinner and Barlow to writing stanzas—but let the poet tell of what the feds would do:—

“And Barlow stanzas shall incite—
A man, the tie who tames, sir—
And if we cannot alter things,
By G—, we'll change their names, sir!”

The poet goes on to tell what names could be changed. Here are some:—

“Let dusky Sally henceforth bear
The name of Isabella;
And let the mountain, all of salt,
Be christened Monticello.”

Will our Minnesota friends pardon us for a serious suggestion? Let this salt region be christened Monticello. And so let the name of the place be connected with the abode of the sage whose statesmanship and patriotism secured the territory to America; and also be a perpetual reproach to the faction whose avocation it was to oppose his measures and to ridicule and blacken his character.—Post. Post.

Slang.

The use of slang phrases, to which so many persons in this country are addicted, is, if not an invariable mark of vulgarity, indicative of low associations at some period of life, and a certain want of dignity and refinement. The young naturally fall into this habit, so offensive to good taste, not only because they have examples in their associates, but because the columns of too many newspapers that fall into their hands, abound with low slang, and the wit and vulgarity of theatre bobbies and street corners. As the use of such terms serves no good purpose whatever, but tends rather to what is low and demoralizing, parents ought to especially discountenance it in their children; and so far as themselves are concerned, give up the habit if it should have insensibly grown upon them.—Home Gazette.

A golden rule for a young lady is, to converse always with your female friends as if a gentleman were of the party; and with young men, as if your female companions were present.

Every man's fortune is in his own hand; a wise man shall control the stars; every way is passable to virtue.

BRANDRETH PILLS.

ON the eighteenth of May, 1835, these now truly celebrated Pills were first made known in the UNITED STATES, although in Europe they had been previously before the public nearly a century. The American public naturally viewed them with suspicion but as on trial they were found what they professed, it was soon displaced by the greatest confidence. They have secured this character, and under very adverse circumstances, having to contend with the base slanders promulgated by those interested in keeping mankind in a state of error as regards the functions of their bodies. Time or climate affects them not, provided they are kept dry. For sale by GEO. HOWARD.
